The Lobsterman's Dream

"In this collection, Larry D. Thomas manages the considerable feat of recognizing both the lyricism and the bleakness of the seafaring life. . . . Both those who are acquainted with the North Atlantic and those who aren't will be grateful for coming across these perceptive, truly felt poems."

Baron Wormser, former Maine Poet Laureate
Current Director of Educational Outreach for The Frost Place

"As Mainers are and as, I believe, poets should be, Thomas is a man of few, well chosen, words. . . . As a Mainer whose family has lived here since 1778, it's a pleasure to see that this visitor "from away" has seen the coast of Maine behind its much photographed wall-calendar beauty."

Robert M. Chute, Distinguished Achievement Award, Maine Writers & Publishers Alliance (2011)
Winner, Chad Walsh Poetry Prize and Maine Chapbook Award

"Through a poetic integrity both luminous and heartbreaking, The Lobsterman's Dream places us decisively in the world of maritime Maine."

Jeffrey C. Alfier, author of The Wolf Yearling and Idyll for a Vanishing River

Senior Editor of San Pedro River Review
